Mandatory Reporting of Child Abuse to UAPD

- Alabama law imposes a mandatory reporting duty of known or suspected child abuse on certain individuals, including all University employees, who must report to The University of Alabama Police Department (UAPD). University policy implementing the law also encourages students, volunteers, and representatives as well as third-party vendors and their employees, representatives, or volunteers that contract for use of University facilities with responsibilities that involve interaction with children to report (orally and then in written form) known or suspected child abuse to UAPD. Sexual abuse, which is one element of the more comprehensive term “abuse” under the Alabama law, includes actual or attempted rape, molestation, sexual exploitation, etc. A more complete statement of University Child Protection policy may be found at http://policies.ua.edu/childprotection.html.
- A child is any person under the age of 18 years old.
- UAPD can be reached at (205) 348-5454.
Reporting Requirements as a Faculty Member

- You are a Responsible Reporting Official and required to report to the Title IX Office for information learned in your role as a Faculty member.
- When you know or reasonably should know of alleged sexual misconduct, the University is deemed to have notice and will take appropriate action, including measures aimed at ending the inappropriate conduct, preventing its recurrence, and remediating its effects.
- You are not required to determine if the University has jurisdiction, to investigate, or to determine if the allegations are provable; just report what you know.

What to do When You Receive a Report

When a Complainant contacts a Responsible Reporting Official, that official shall make a reasonable effort to advise the Complainant or other reporting party of:

1. The Responsible Reporting Official's duty to inform the Title IX Coordinator about the incident (e.g., the names of the individuals involved; the time, the place, the location, etc.)
2. The option of the Complainant or other reporting party to request that the Respondent not be identified by the Complainant (that request may limit the University's ability to end the inappropriate conduct, prevent its recurrence, and remediating its effects)
3. The fact that the Complainant or other reporting individual may share the information on a strictly confidential basis with professional mental health counselors on campus or the WGRC.
4. If also criminal, advise the Complainant of the option of reporting to UAPD.

How to Receive a Report

- You may be the first person that the reporter has spoken to about the incident. Your response is very important.
- Be calm and do not panic. Stay professional.
- Be attentive, respectful, and understanding, not judgmental.
- Never ignore a report.
- Get the reporter’s contact information.
- Determine if there is an immediate safety need.
- Reporting should always be encouraged.
- Sign up for Harbor Training! Participants gain insight and sensitivity to the issues of interpersonal violence. Further, participants are made aware of the resources available to victims in order to provide information to those in need.

Confidentiality v. Privacy

- An individual may ask that you not report, but as a mandatory reporter, you do not have a choice, you must report.
- You can reassure the individual that the information is kept as private as possible and shared only on a need to know basis.
- It will be up to that individual whether they cooperate with the Title IX Office. In most cases, it is up to the individual whether there is an investigation.
- The Title IX Office will reach out to the individual, usually via email, to let them know their options and provide assistance with resources.
- If a person wants to talk to someone confidentially, you should refer them to the WGRC or other counseling options. The WGRC and others who have the confidential privilege will not share any identifying information without a release by the patient/client.

Classroom Discussions

- Even as a responsible reporting official, you are not required to report incidents of sexual misconduct if they are reported to you as part of a routine academic experience (ex. classroom discussion, writing assignments, research projects, etc.) unless the reporting party clearly states that they want a report to be made or they are seeking assistance.
- You are encouraged to provide individuals who communicate sexual misconduct with information regarding UA departments where they can obtain resources. If you need support in communicating the resources with the student, please contact the Title IX Office.
- If you are going to conduct research that could cause an individual to disclose sexual misconduct, this is not considered notice unless the individual is reporting to seek assistance. We are available to provide you with materials that you can give to your research participants regarding how to report and resources.
UA Resources

- The University provides academic resources, housing resources, counseling, transportation assistance, safety planning, legal referrals, etc. (See Title IX Quick Reference Guide)
- The Title IX Office can assist Complainants and Respondents with access to UA resources.
- A Complainant can be assisted with resources even if the accused is not associated with UA, the accused is unknown, or if the Complainant does not request an investigation.
